A look at Skeleton Head Beach...

While at Fireball Island, be sure to visit the luscious and almost-bone-free Skeleton Head Beach! Named by an early explorer, who OBVIOUSLY WAS KIDDING, Skeleton Head Beach is a perfect place to walk, relax, or just a place to land after being thrown from a cliff path. With it's sand-like white particles, it's a fun place to build a castle or unearth a rock that ISN'T ACTUALLY A SKELETON HEAD! Be sure to time your trip to catch the late afternoon surf, when the crashing waves nearly drown out the screams from those up on Fireflash Chute.
